Colorado College opens to-morrow with prospects better than ever before for a successful session.

It is a singular story which comes from Louisville, Ky. A woman [illegible] it is alleged, has [illegible] during which [illegible] appeared on her hands, feet and forehead certain marks similar to those caused by the thorns and nails upon the Savior at the crucifixion. There are are few of our readers, we believe, who are aware that such a story is not at all new, and this miraculous legend is one of the common stories of the medieval church. Many saints, both male and female, have it is said borne the holy and miraculous "stigmata," or marks. Chief among these were St. Francis of Assisi, upon whom it is reported they appeared on Sept. 15, 1224, and the holy Veronica Giuliani, who was similarly afflicted in 1694. Many other persons, the most illustrious of whom was St. Catherine of Siena, have claimed that they felt the pains of such wounds [illegible] but without any external [illegible]. Like that of the Holy Coat, this monkish legend of the middle ages seems strangely at variance with the spirit of the nineteenth century. Of course, if these things are so, there should be no reason why modern enlightenment and invention should interfere. The telegraph may freely be used to spread the news, the railroad to bring pilgrims, while all the tests that science could suggest would only emphasize the genuineness of the miracle. By the way, we notice that the Louisville woman is to be examined by a committee of priests. Would it not be well to include on this committee a reputable physician, familiar with irritants, and especially, perhaps, with those annoying little sores which the boys at school used to call "fox bites," and which were made by rubbing the back of one hand with the knuckles of the other?

TWO STATE CAMPAIGNS.

The interest in this fall's election is centered in New York and Ohio. In many other states questions of considerable local import will be settled, and candidates in each one at least are convinced of its surpassing interest. But in none of them does the campaign rise to the dignity of national politics except in the two already mentioned. In both of these the Republicans seem [illegible] to be at an advantage. Whatever may be thought of Major McKinley and the policy which has become synonymous with his name, it cannot be [illegible] the circumstances have conspired to favor that policy since the adoption of the high tariff law. [illegible] prosperity [illegible] has made [illegible] willing to divide [illegible] after thought [illegible] for which [illegible] was expected, and the new American "infant industry" of tin plate making has proven [illegible] to the pride and imagination of the voters. The fact, too, that Mr. McKinley has thrown all the powerful force of his personality into the campaign, while his opponent spends a critical time in New York, counts strongly for the Republicans.

In New York the campaign though newer has a more important bearing on national politics and a more lively interest, while the advantage is with the Republicans even more than in Ohio. The Republican candidate is acceptable to all sections of the party, a man of excellent record and high standing, liked most by those who know him best, and his nomination has left no bitterness rankling in the hearts of defeated candidates. On the other hand the Democratic choice is a man who is liked rather than admired. His nomination was secured by barring from representation in the convention many influential Democrats and was then carried only after bitter antagonism from the Kings county delegates. Besides this the second place on the ticket was filled in a way that was a personal affront to Cleveland and his friends and there is good reason to believe that in Buffalo, if not in New York, the old factional storm that wrecked Cleveland's ship in '88 will drive against Hill's friend, Flower. There are other reasons yet for expecting Republican success, but these are sufficient to warrant the belief in a victory which cannot fail to have a strong influence on the presidential election of next year and to be taken as a forecast of its results.

Kindergarten Instruction.

Omaha Bee.

Among all the advanced movements in educational circles within a few years that in favor of incorporating the kindergarten into the public school system is at once the most interesting and promises the most beneficial results to the country at large. Within twenty years the system elaborated by Froebel has grown rapidly in favor in all countries where the education of children is given thought and attention. From very insignificant beginnings in America the kindergarten has steadily advanced in favor, until now it is recognized by leading educators as the system best adapted to the earliest instruction of the child. It has now become a part of many public school systems, but it is soon to be adopted in all our principal cities if the signs of the times are read correctly. San Francisco, Boston, Philadelphia, Rochester and St. Louis have free kindergartens supported from public funds. St. Paul, Washington, Los Angeles and other cities have free kindergartens kept up by private subscriptions. In every large city of the Union private kindergartens abound, and all over the country the discussion proceeds as to whether Froebel's idea shall be engrafted upon the American system or continued as private instruction. Congress will be asked to adopt the system in the District of Columbia, and kindergarten [illegible] are [illegible] its importance and merits. It is merely a question of time when the little children of our cities will be gathered into [illegible] for them, where the kindergarten worker and kindergarten materials [illegible] will be furnished by the public. Their utility is admitted. The expense of conducting them will soon be provided for. There were in 1880, at the time of the last government report upon the subject, 232 kindergartens, [illegible]. This represents the growth since [illegible], when attention began to be directed to the system this side of the Atlantic.

Our people have been slow to recognize its advantages, largely [illegible]. In American homes parents have more leisure for imparting instruction than in those of foreign countries. The demands upon the assimilating [illegible] of our public schools has [illegible] in these twenty years. The proportion of the [illegible] and more illiterate [illegible] of foreigners immigrating to America has increased more rapidly than our facilities for absorbing them. The public school is the essential and chief instrument that these elements shall become a useful part of our social organism. The school work, properly [illegible] does not [illegible] with which this giant influx of ignorant [illegible] our country. The kindergarten [illegible] is the [illegible] American [illegible] instruction which can be devised. Its introduction into the [illegible] of the public [illegible] will take the children of working people [illegible] are forced to neglect their home training at three years of age, and carry them in their [illegible] to the age of eight, [illegible] to them [illegible] habits of [illegible] obedience, industry and accuracy, while [illegible] them to talk, read, write, and laying the foundations for industrial employment in after years. It is the only practicable way of lengthening the average period of attendance upon instruction and the [illegible] which has already attended kindergarten training disposes of all question as to its utility.

There are two points of weakness in our public school [illegible]. One is that the course of study is not always shaped with an eye to results of a practical nature, and the other is the fact that an alarmingly large proportion of all the children who enter the public schools [illegible] the higher [illegible]. The kindergarten will largely [illegible] weakness. It is [illegible] industrial training and without forcing the mind into books leads the pupil at eight years of age at the threshold of the public school proper with a variety and extent of information which ordinary methods of instruction would never impart.

WESTERN BREVITIES.

J. A. McGuire, a Denver wheelman, recently made the trip from Denver to Ogden and return in eighteen days. The distance is [illegible] miles, and all but eighty-five miles of desert was covered on a cushion-tired safety.

Larimer county farmers have every reason to be grateful for the recent rains, which insure a third crop of alfalfa, which will be as heavy as the first. Larimer county farmers, as a rule, are prosperous, and the crops are good. The hailstorms did considerable damage in certain sections of northern Colorado this year, but not sufficient to injure the hard times cry. Prosperity is evidenced on every hand in the valley of the Poudre.

Combustible Substances.

There are many substances which will produce what is called spontaneous combustion when brought into contact, and which are therefore sources of danger when left about the house. Greasy rags and rags which have been used with turpentine or alcohol should be burned as soon as used. The merest spark may cause a blaze where olive oil or any other vegetable oil is mixed with rags, hay, sawdust or any such combustible material. Fine sawdust is a very combustible material, and should not be used, as it very often is, to collect the drippings of oil casks in shops or warehouses.

Lampblack mixed with linseed oil is one of the most inflammable of substances. A common source of fire in houses comes from the timbers dried by the steam, hot air or hot water apparatus. It is safest to destroy at once all greasy rags of whatever kind or description, for these may in a moment of negligence become the cause of great destruction.—New York Tribune.

Invalid's Cup and Saucer.

An ingenious cup and saucer has been devised for the special purpose of keeping the food of invalids warm when required. The cup is molded with three feet, allowing an air space of about half an inch between its bottom and the saucer. In the surface of the saucer is a circular depression, within which is placed a piece of lighted charcoal, which is supplied at a cheap rate in the form of tablets. From this there are no fumes or unpleasant smells, and the food of the invalid, of whatever nature it may happen to be, is kept warm for fully an hour.—New York Telegram.

AFTER ALL BIG FIRES.

MEN WHO MAY BE SEEN IN THE RUINS OF A CONFLAGRATION.

Strange Things Happen That Ordinary People Would Never Dream About—The Work That Firemen, Policemen, Patrolmen and Adjusters Do.

After the fire is over, what then? The average citizen sees only a heap of smoking ruins and thinks that nothing remains to be done but to clear them away and build anew. But to the initiated the details of the work are manifold. There are four bodies of men actively concerned with the ruins.

First, the firemen. They distrust the red dragon. He may be lurking under any of the heaps of bricks, ready for a fresh outbreak. So they do what they call overhauling. They turn over all the smoking piles and drench the embers and wet down the neighboring walls, and remain on guard until everything is cold. Sometimes they have to wait nearly a week, and their work after the fire is very laborious, as in the Park place fire, where so many lives were lost. Three days after the fire was over there were still fifty firemen at work on the ruins getting out the bodies and watching the place to make sure that no flames would start up again. Many of those fifty men worked for forty-eight hours incessantly, with only three hours intervals for meals. At the great fire that destroyed the Havemeyer sugar refinery it was more than a week before the ruins were cold enough to be safe.

Second, the police. They protect the firemen from the crowds of citizens who come to look on and the property rescued from the rabble who come to loot. They draw what is called a fire line about the burning building and keep it up after it is burned till the work of the firemen is done.

Third, the fire patrol. This is a professional band of property rescuers, maintained by the insurance companies. It was organized forty years ago, and was then composed entirely of members of the volunteer fire department. In 1863 it was incorporated under a charter which commissioned it to save lives and property at fires. In the first place it really was a patrol, walking about the streets from 7.30 o'clock each evening till 5.30 o'clock next morning looking for fires. Now it is called to fires in the same way as the regular fire department. Its men used to wear the same uniforms as the firemen, but there was a row over that and now they are distinguished by red stripes.

THE FIRE PATROL.

The men of the fire patrol go out with trucks, one truck from each station. Each truck carries eleven men and axes, ladders, brooms, shovels, crowbars and twenty-four immense tarpaulin coverings, with which the fire patrol men go into a building comparatively safe from fire, but drenched with water, and covers up the goods there. The patrolmen usually work under the firemen. For instance, if there is a fire on the fourth floor they are busy on the third floor and the floors below covering up goods with the tarpaulins and removing them out of the way of water.

They also follow the hose lines where [illegible] lines run through buildings not on fire to stop all leaks in the hose or set buckets under the leaks or protect goods from spray. They can't tell till the fire is over whether the property they are saving is insured or not; therefore they go ahead without paying any attention to the question.

The fire patrol follow the firemen and fix things up, saving all they can for the insurance companies and stopping all unnecessary damage. When the firemen [illegible] patrol stays with the agents of the insurers guarding the goods till the insurance is settled or the rescued property is removed to a place of safety.

After all is said and done at the fire proper, come the insurance adjusters poking about the ruins. This is a small, high priced body of shrewd and experienced men, whose business is to find out on behalf of the insurance companies how much the loss was. An insurance adjuster will always tell you that his is a judicial function, just as a district attorney always contends that he is acting judicially, though the prisoner may not think so. The insured seldom agree with the insurance adjuster. He is sent on behalf of the insurance company and is on the watch for fraud.

THE ADJUSTERS' WORK.

The serious work does not usually begin till the ashes are cold. Insurance companies don't take inventories of the property insured nowadays. The contents of a store are constantly changing. They wait for the insured to make out his claim in itemized form. Then they call for the books and the vouchers. Maybe all books and vouchers are burned. In that case the memory of the owner must do its best to supply the deficiency.

Frauds are frequent, and the adjusters are usually in business for themselves—not attached to any particular company, but hired by the job, just like lawyers or private detectives. They have to keep their eyes wide open.

In cases like the Park place fire, where everything becomes a heap of ruins in an instant, and no books or papers or material evidence of any kind is left, the adjusters have to depend on careful scrutiny of the itemized claims; but in numbers of other cases where the fire department does its work rapidly the adjusters make most astonishing finds.

After the insurance is settled the owner of the building puts the ruins up for sale. There are a number of contractors in the city who will buy them on speculation.—New York Recorder.

Petrified Remains.

William Ines died and was buried at Corunna, Ind., in 1884. At the time of his death Mr. Ines weighed 180 pounds. In May, 1891, when the remains were disinterred, they were found to be petrified, to look like marble and to weigh exactly 405 pounds.—St. Louis Republic.

SELLING A CLOCK.

It Cost Him Twenty Shillings, and He Knows Better Now.

There were six or eight men in a group just outside the Hoboken ferryhouse, when a young man who had a parcel under his arm came up and said:

"Gentlemen, I live in Elizabeth. A man in this town was owing me ten dollars and I came up to collect it. I found that he had met with misfortune, and when he offered me this clock to settle the debt I took it."

Everything seemed all right and reasonable so far, and as he removed the paper everybody was ready to look at the clock.

"I don't say it is worth ten dollars," continued the young man. "Indeed, any one who has studied clocks can see at a glance that it is not worth over six. That's just what it is—a regular six dollar clock. I have no use for it and wish to turn it into cash. There's nothing gorgeous about it, but it is a plain every day clock, which won't kick itself off a kitchen shelf. How much am I offered for it?"

Two or three men instinctively put their hands into their pockets, and one of them finally observed that clocks were mighty cheap these days.

"I know that the market is glutted with clocks, and that clocks are cheap. I must sell it, however, and I must take what I can get. You can see for yourself what it is—handy, handy, cheerful looking face and an ornament to any house in this town. I'll wrap it up again to keep the happiness out of the works. Some of you want this clock. Did I hear a voice say four dollars?"

"I'm a-wantin a clock," slowly replied one of the men, "but I can do better than that."

"How much better? We are all agreed that it's a six dollar clock. Can you go to a store and buy it for four or less? Of course you can't. It is but human nature [illegible] to take advantage of our fellow men's misfortunes. You all know that I want to turn this clock into money. None of you care how much I have to sacrifice. Do I hear three dollars for this clock, which I forgot to say requires winding only once in eight days?"

"I'll give you twenty shillings," said the man who had spoken before.

"Twenty shillings for a six dollar clock! Twenty shillings for my ten dollar claim! Gentlemen, it's shylocky—it's robbery, but you have me on the hip and I must accept the offer. Pass over the sugar."

The money was handed over and the package changed hands. The young man observed that he couldn't truthfully say he was much obliged, but he would at least wish the crowd long life and prosperity, and he then disappeared with a great deal of activity. He was probably half a mile away, and still moving when the buyer of the clock removed the paper to have another look. He hefted it in his hand, looked puzzled and finally opened the door at the back. It was empty. There wasn't even a wheel inside—nothing but the case. Everybody gasped, "By George!" and ran to the corner, but the young man from Elizabeth was far away.—M. Quad in New York World.

Mr. Green Understood It.

Some good stories are told of Thomas Reynolds, who began his duties as an associate justice of the supreme court of this state early in September, 1832. Not all of them are true, and the one that follows has been denied, but it may be worth repeating, nevertheless. Governor Ford is authority for it:

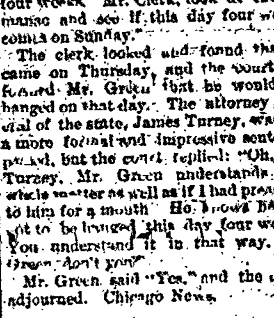

Judge Reynolds presided at a court in which a man named Green had been convicted of murder, and it became his unpleasant duty to pronounce sentence of death upon the culprit. He called the prisoner before him and said: "Mr. Green, the jury, in its verdict, says you are guilty of murder, and the law says you are to be hanged. Now I want you and all your friends down on Indian creek to know that it is not I who condemns you, but it is the jury and the law. Mr. Green, the law allows you time for preparation, and so the court wants to know what time you would like to be hanged."

The prisoner replied that he was ready to die at any time the court might appoint. The judge then said: "Mr. Green, you must know that it is a very serious thing to be hanged. It can't happen to a man more than once in his life, and you had better take all the time you can get. The court will give you until this day four weeks. Mr. Clerk, look at the almanac and see if this day four weeks comes on Sunday."

The clerk looked and found that it came on Thursday, and the court informed Mr. Green that he would be hanged on that day. The attorney general of the state, James Turney, wanted a more formal and impressive sentence passed, but the court replied: "Oh, Mr. Turney, Mr. Green understands the whole matter as well as if I had preached to him for a month. He knows he has got to be hanged this day four weeks. You understand it in that way, Mr. Green, don't you?"

Mr. Green said "Yes," and the court adjourned.—Chicago News.

Never.

She—What shall I say when papa asks me what your prospects are?

He—Tell him I expect to have one of [illegible] my father-in-law.—Frank Leslie's Illustrated.

Very Fast.

"The shades of night are falling fast," sang Mr. Mitts, as he went to pull down the blind and jerked it off the roller.—Binghamton Republican.

Unrecognized.

Involuntary flattery is sweet to the soul, but its opposite, the obtuseness which fails to recognize our good points, is hard indeed to bear. A lady whose portrait was on exhibition in a certain gallery had her own attention called to it by the owner of the place. "B— has put some of his best work into this, madam," said he. "Everybody acknowledges it to be a fine portrait."

"Does it remind you of any one?" asked she, looking him full in the face.

"Why, no! I don't know the original; but she must certainly be a very beautiful woman."

"Then you never saw her?"

"Never! Why," as some meaning in her tone and merry face broke upon him, "it isn't you?"

The beautiful Mrs. Norton one day went to buy some plaster casts for her niece to use as models in drawing. The proprietor of the shop displayed a large collection of hands, arms and ears, and finally held up a very symmetrical nose. "There, ma'am," said he, "I can safely recommend that. It's the Honorable Mrs. Norton's nose, and hartists do buy a lot of 'em. It's very popular."

The same failure to grasp the situation took place at the meeting of two young women, at the "reunion" of a prominent New England family. Fifth cousins and relatives by name rather than blood were talking together, sometimes not knowing in the least "who was who," and these two women especially had discovered that they had many tastes in common, though as yet neither had found for the other "a local habitation and a name."

"I want chiefly to see Charlie Pennell's wife," said one. "When they were married he wrote my brother that she was a beauty, and had a mouth like Cupid's bow. Now, I never met precisely that sort of mouth, and I've been on the lookout for it all day."

"My dear," said the other merrily, but with a little sadness in her eyes, "I am Charlie's wife. That Cupid's bow is now before you, but I suppose it has been twanged so many times in saying 'don't' to the children, and complaining about the cook and the housemaid that it has grown as straight as the line of duty."—Youth's Companion.

At the Court of a South Sea King.

A Narrative of Life on the Gilbert Islands, an out-of-the-way Group of the South Pacific Ocean.

BY

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

A new series of letters by Robert Louis Stevenson, describing his experiences and adventures in the Gilbert Islands. This is a group cut off from all regular intercourse with the outside world, to which no post goes, and where only occasional trading vessels touch.

Life in this strange place is most interesting and picturesque. The articles are full of incidents and anecdotes, delightful character sketches of queer people, and dramatic bits of dialogue. The narrative is as captivating as a piece of fiction, full of color, of movement, of strange situations and pictures. The material is altogether fresh and novel. In these papers Stevenson is at his best; they show in its full maturity the charming style of the most perfect master of English of our day.

I. IN A DESERT SEA. Arrival at Butaritari. Island characteristics. The King's palace not so commodious as a laborer's house in the United States. A visit to the King.

II. THE FOUR BROTHERS. The story of a South Sea chieftain. The King acts as executioner. The harem of a tropical potentate. A prince who was nicknamed "Mr. Corpse."

III. AROUND MY HOUSE. Strange sights from the writer's house in the Gilbert Islands. A sea wall built by the hands of queens. The toddy cutters. Beautiful women of the South Pacific. Only one white woman in the islands. A sample ruffian of the South Seas. The parson of Butaritari.

IV. A TALE OF A TAPU. The King of the Cannibal Islands on a spree. Curious scenes at Court.

V. MORE CONCERNING THE TAPU. Spies about us. Attack by natives. In danger from drunkards.

VI. THE FIVE DAYS' FESTIVAL. Invited to the King's summer house. A concert of native singers. A barbaric opera. A wonderfully dramatic dance. A South Sea topical song. A native who made a flying machine. A magic lantern show.

VII. HUSBAND AND WIFE IN THE GILBERTS. "A Paradise of Naked Women." Polygamy in the South Seas. Etiquette among the natives. Scenes in a Gilbertine household.

VIII. THE KING OF APEMAMA. The royal trader. The hero of song and the butt of gossip. The last of the South Sea tyrants. A savage Napoleon. An island chief who owns ships.

IX. HOW THE KING BUILT A TOWN FOR STEVENSON. Constructing a city in a day. Walled by a taboo.

X. THE PALACE OF MANY WOMEN. A retinue of dusky ladies. An evening at cards with the King. A game of royal inventions. A kingly poet of the Southern Seas.

XI. OUR ATTENDANT FROM THE PALACE. Uncle Parker and his sleight-of-hand performance. The royal cook, and how he was disgraced.

QUAIL IN CAPTIVITY.

[illegible]UNG BIRDS HATCHED AND RAISED IN PHILADELPHIA.

[illegible] Successful Method of Feeding Infant Quail so as [illegible] Bring Them to Maturity—How He [illegible]—His Food Is a Secret.

It is a fact well known to naturalists [illegible] animals are much easier to tame [illegible] bipls. That is to say, mammalia [illegible] more fit to undergo the conditions of [illegible] than the winged and feathered [illegible]. The result is that the habits of [illegible] of the most common and interest[illegible] [illegible] practically unknown. The [illegible] is that the bird requires more [illegible] and air than four-footed crea[illegible].

[illegible] the birds which are rarely [illegible] captivity, although the species is ex[illegible] common, is the quail, the popu[illegible] American Bob White. Although [illegible] attempts have been made to [illegible] them as other poultry, they have [illegible] been unsuccessful. Game pre[illegible] have kept quail under the most [illegible] conditions, and have induced [illegible] birds to lay eggs and to hatch [illegible] young, but they can do no more. [illegible] once hatched the chicks die. The [illegible] therefore, has been reached [illegible] the feeding of quail is not properly [illegible] understood.

[illegible] these facts being generally recognized, [illegible] be a matter of surprise to many [illegible] that a Philadelphian has for the [illegible] three years been successful in hatch[illegible] out and raising quail. Most men [illegible] their hobbies, and the rearing of [illegible] is Mr. Harry Rudolph's pet amuse[illegible]. It is such an original hobby that [illegible] may well be asked how he acquired [illegible] idea. Mr. Rudolph is a thor[illegible] sportsman, and, to quote his own [illegible], "would rather gun than eat." [illegible] and pheasant shooting is his de[illegible], and he confesses that he always [illegible] a fancy for the game little Bob [illegible]. About three years ago he was [illegible] a brace of live quail while gun[illegible] at Newkirk station, in New Jersey, [illegible] were the nucleus of his present [illegible]. He brought them to his house, fitted up a cage for them in his little [illegible] lot.

[illegible] HOW HE SUCCEEDED.

[illegible] gradually acquired a few other [illegible], which paired off and commenced [illegible] and hatch eggs during the sum[illegible]. The small ones were successfully [illegible] hatched out, but died very shortly after. [illegible] determined to discover the [illegible] of their early demise, and, know[illegible] it must be lack of proper food, de[illegible] to watch the habits of the old [illegible] and experiment upon them with [illegible] varieties of grain and insect food.

[illegible] spite of the amusement of his [illegible], who considered his attempt [illegible], Mr. Rudolph set to work to [illegible] to raise quail, and, after numer[illegible] failures, was able, in his second year, [illegible] successfully hatch and raise a brood [illegible]. He had hit upon the right [illegible] of feeding them, and the young [illegible] were as strong and healthy as if born [illegible] natural conditions. Since then [illegible] reckons that 65 per cent. of his young [illegible] have been successfully brought to [illegible]. As statistics show that hun[illegible] per cent. of wild game birds attain [illegible] full size, owing to the number of [illegible] natural foes, such as hawks and [illegible], this is an extremely good rec[illegible].

[illegible] a small yard, scarcely twenty feet [illegible], Mr. Rudolph keeps his pets. [illegible] enclosure is shut in on three sides [illegible] wooden fence, and on the fourth by [illegible] rear wall of his house. Around the [illegible] are bedded geranium and small [illegible]. In the center is a patch of [illegible], with a tall plant in the middle. [illegible] side of the lot are the cages, in [illegible] three [illegible] are raised off in sep[illegible] coops.

RAISING QUAIL.

[illegible] the fourth coop is a lonely and de[illegible] hen, while running loose about [illegible] and are two cocks and a hen with [illegible] chicks. The latter are a remark[illegible] brood. They were hatched, with [illegible] others, on the 8th of July, which is [illegible] only one month ahead of the breeding [illegible]. The defect ones were killed by [illegible] inclement weather or some other [illegible] common to infant quail, but the [illegible] survivors remain perfectly healthy.

[illegible] then the next brood is bred, the [illegible] is loose in the yard, together with [illegible] parent birds will be shut up to make [illegible] room for the newcomers. Owing to the [illegible] pugnacity of the cocks it is im[illegible] to let more than one pair loose [illegible] time, or the lives of the birds would [illegible] endangered. The pairing off of two [illegible] with one is, although rare, is oc[illegible] found. The two male birds [illegible] companion the little mother hen live [illegible] harmony, and both work [illegible] at making the nests and take [illegible] sitting on the eggs.

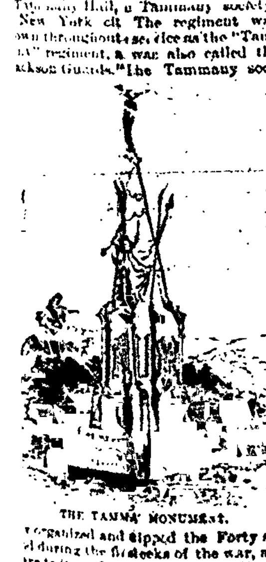

[illegible] principal [illegible] which Mr. Rudolph [illegible] to his pets is grain; grasshoppers [illegible] form part of their dietary. But the [illegible] by which he manages to raise the [illegible] Mr. Rudolph refuses to reveal. [illegible] says that it is something natural to [illegible] birds in wild life, but beyond that [illegible] will not commit himself. The quail [illegible] very fond of hayseed, but they get [illegible] on it that's a value as wholesome [illegible] is very small—it would soon kill [illegible] off. It is useful, however, in feed[illegible] birds which have been sitting in or[illegible] to bring them back to their proper [illegible] condition.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE "TAMMANY" REGIMENT.

Among the impressive occasions of the [illegible] of 1891 on the battlefield of Gettys[illegible], none could be more unique than the [illegible] gathering around the monument to the [illegible] Forty-second New York volunteers on [illegible] 22.

The creation of the monument is due to [illegible] patriotic and liberal impulses of the fa[illegible] political organization popularly known [illegible] Tammany Hall, a Tammany society, [illegible] New York city. The regiment was [illegible] known throughout the service as the "Tam[illegible] many" regiment, and was also called the [illegible] Jackson Guards." The Tammany soci[illegible]

THE TAMMANY MONUMENT.

[illegible] organized and equipped the Forty-sec[illegible] during the first weeks of the war, and [illegible] to it its first colonel, Sachem W. D. [illegible] Kennedy, brother the superintendent of [illegible] metropolitan policemen 1860 to 1870, J. A. [illegible] Kennedy. A large representation of the [illegible] society, probably 8 members, will take [illegible] part in the ceremony of dedication. A [illegible] delegation of the survivors of the regiment, [illegible] headed by Major De Bowe, ex-sheriff of [illegible] New York county; Colonel J. J. McM[illegible] and Captain Eugene Sullivan, will accompany the party from New York to the field and parade as a feature of the exercises.

Tammany's chief, Hon. Richard Croker, Mayor Grant, Commissioner Gilroy, Hon. Bourke Cockran and other prominent public men of the city will also be of the party in attendance. General Martin T. McMahon will preside over the ceremonies, and orations and speeches will be made by General Daniel E. Sickles, Colonel Ely S. Parker, who was on General Grant's staff, and is a representative of Indian blood, and Colonel John R. Fellows. The Tammany Glee club will also play an interesting part.

The arrangements for the unveiling and dedication are in charge of a committee composed of City Register Frank T. Fitzgerald, John T. Carroll, Alderman N. T. Brown and State Senator George T. P[illegible]. The [illegible] of the Tammany society that have carried forward the work of building the monument to this successful issue is headed by Police Commissioner James J. Martin, of New York city. His associates are Sheriff John J. Gorman and General John Cochrane.

The expenditure of the society has been very liberal, as the state supplied but $1,500 toward the structure, and the cost was $8,500. The bronze Indian figure is 6 feet 6 inches high and the tepl 10 feet high. It stands on the slope of Cemetery Ridge near the "Bloody angle" of the stone wall where Pickett's columns were met and repulsed on July 3, 1863.

The Forty-second well deserves a monument, and the design selected, though at first thought it seems to contrast strangely with the military statues around it, is a representation of the age and of the sentiment that brought the regiment into being. Its first colonel was a grand sachem of Tammany. Colonel Kennedy died in the service, and had four successors—Colonel Milton Cogswell, Colonel E. C. Charles, Colonel James E. Mallon and Colonel William A. Lynch. Colonel Mallon was killed at Bristol Station, Oct. 14, 1863, while leading his brigade.

The regiment had its baptism at Ball's Bluff, Oct. 21, 1861, where it lost seven killed, including three officers, six wounded and 120 missing. It fought on the Peninsula, particularly at Glendale, June 30, 1862, and at Antietam lost 163 killed and wounded out of 351 engaged. On that field it was in Sedgwick's famous charge at Dunker's Church, Sept. 17. At Gettysburg it was in Hall's brigade, Gibbons' division of Hancock's corps, and was conspicuous in aiding the repulse of Pickett's charge. Its losses at Gettysburg were fifteen killed and fifty-five wounded. After Gettysburg it fought at Bristol Station and in the Wilderness campaign, closing its career at Petersburg. The total losses of the regiment in killed and wounded were [illegible] out of 1,210 enrolled. The killed and mortally wounded numbered 15[illegible], or 12.6 per cent. of its numbers. During its entire term of service the Forty-second was in the Second division Second corps of the [illegible] AT PETERSBURG.

Might Have Been Worse.

The Princess Charlotte, daughter of George IV, was a young woman of great spirit and originality. One day she took a fancy to make her will, and in it bequeathed all her property to one of her teachers. He was imprudent enough to keep the document, and was, in consequence, dismissed as soon as it was discovered.

The gentleman who then undertook his duties did so with great zeal, and had reason to find one, at least, of his corrections productive of good.

He chanced to enter the room when the princess was scolding one of her attendant ladies, in great wrath, and after giving her a lecture on hasty speech, he presented her with a book on the subject.

A few days later he found her still more furious and using language even more violent.

"I am sorry to find your royal highness in such a passion," said he. "Your royal highness has not read the book I gave you."

"I did, my lord," cried she tempestuously. "I both read it and profited by it. Otherwise, I should have scratched her eyes out!" Youth's Companion.

Manitou.

One of Dr. Lewis' children is reported very sick with fever.

Contractor M. E. Molloy returned Saturday from an extensive trip to New Mexico.

Mr. T. A. Hoyt is returning to Colorado Springs where he will spend the winter.

Postmaster H. H. Chalfe, who has been very low with hemorrhage of the lungs, is once more able to be about.

Mr. J. K. Noaton, who has had charge of N. C. Jones' lime kilns the past season, has left for Lake Mills, Wis., called by the sickness of his father.

It is an interesting sight that greets the eyes of the visitor at the artificial ice plant of Civill A. White, and one well worth going to see. At present the plant is being run to its full capacity, and the storehouse is filling up rapidly. One of the features inside the building is the pipes covered with solid white frost nearly an inch thick, through which the cold brine or ammonia gas returns. There is considerable activity at the plant, and twenty men, including the night and day force, are employed. An electric light dynamo is being put into the building, and outside a coal shed 12x100 feet is being built. At present nine cakes per hour, or 216 cakes per day are being pulled from the freezing tank.

Mr. Louis Langbehn, who has been for the last ten years connected with several jewelry firms of this city, will open a manufacturing shop and jewelry establishment at 130 East Pike's Peak avenue in the first week of next month. Mr. Langbehn is very well known in this city and will no doubt give his patrons satisfaction.

Owing to the large size of the first grade in the Garfield school it will be divided and a new teacher, who will probably be Miss Horton, will begin work on Monday.

A marriage license was issued yesterday permitting John Pierce, of Holt, Elbert county, to wed Miss Maggie Hunter, of Astor, Greeley county, Kansas.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO

A man settled in Baker county, Oregon, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become identified with the growth and development of that country. This man is no other than Mr. John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says: "I have been suffering from pains in my back and general kidney complaints for some time, and had used many remedies without any but temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and could not move about without the use of a cane. Hearing, through a friend, of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try a box, and from that very first dose I found instant relief, and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back entirely disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."

Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, incontinence of urine, brick dust sediment, burning or painful sensation while urinating, and all affections of the kidney or urinary organs of either sex.

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1891.

Mr. F. R. Atherton left Sunday night for [illegible] San Francisco and southern California.

Mr. J. A. Himebaugh and family left Saturday night for a visit among old friends in Ohio.

The fireworks to be set off by the lake at the Broadmoor Casino next Friday night arrived yesterday.

Mr. F. A. Palfee's local in the third column of the fourth page contains his farewell address to the people of this city.

Mr. F. B. Wortman, of the real estate office of Edward Ferris, returned Sunday from a seven weeks' tour of the east near the great lakes.

Mr. R. B. Hall of THE GAZETTE business office has filed his bond as a notary public and is now in possession of all the notarial rights and perquisites.

Mrs. Jeanette W. Crawford, of Boston, delivered a lecture in Darkee hall Sunday afternoon. Her subject was "God," and her talk was an eloquent one.

The Session Laws for 1891, printed by the Gazette Printing company, state printers, are now ready and for sale by the secretary of state at $1 10 per volume.

Charles Reddy and Peter Teal were brought before the police court yesterday morning for drunkenness. Reddy was fined $10 and costs and Teal $2 and costs.

There will be held at the Garfield school some time next month a literary day, on which occasion pupils will give a very elaborate programme, including recitations from the famous American authors.

The engine on the Denver and Rio Grande train between this city and Manitou, left the rails at the crossing of the county road near the lime kilns yesterday afternoon, nearly blocking the road for some time.

Mr. T. T. Palgrove is making a number of improvements in the Club Coffee house. A handsome piece of tapestry has been hung in the window and a nice carpet has been laid on the floor and along the window seat.

The concerts by the Hungarian band at the Broadmoor Casino will be discontinued for the present, after Friday night. People should therefore avail themselves of the opportunities given to hear them, before that date.

Special German Lutheran services will be held at the city hall this evening at 7:45 o'clock. Rev. H. Rank, of Denver, will preach. The German residents of this and neighboring cities are invited to come and bring their friends.

Dr. M. H. Smith has purchased the interest of Mr. F. E. Dow in the jewelry firm of Woodworth, Dow & Randall, and the firm name will hereafter be Woodworth, Smith & Randall. Mr. Dow will take an eastern tour with his family.

If the Country club can succeed in carrying out their plan of holding two or three days of races at their grounds next month the occasion will be a far greater one than any yet held there. The club will advertise in Denver and put up $2,000 in purses.

The outdoor sports which will be given by the Colorado Springs Athletic club on Oct. 3, a programme of which was published in Sunday's GAZETTE have so far been received with great favor, as is evidenced by the generosity of the following parties who have already subscribed liberally toward the premiums for the various events: Frank Dutton, M. F. Warren, Midland Cigar store, Blake Hardware Co., Consolidated Stationery Co., Chas. Stockbridge, L. G. Goodspeed, C. E. Evans, F. O. Wood, M. T. Rafield, Helm & Kopf, J. L. Mitchell, Dr. Hayden, W. H. Goshen and Van Petten Bros.

The kindergarten board of managers wish to ask the friends who became members of the association last year by the payment of one dollar if they will increase their membership fee for the coming year to two dollars—one for each of the two schools—a second one having been opened this month with an attendance of twenty-five pupils—as many as the room will accommodate. A lack of funds only prevents other schools being established where they would be welcomed by those mothers who are unable to give their little ones the care and attention necessary to any right development.

Mr. J. W. Brauer, of this city, has been appointed clerk of the course for the October meeting of the Overland Park club of Denver. There will be seven days of races, and a neat programme covering the entire meet has just been gotten out. Among the entries from this city are McLeod, Jr., owned by Judge E. A. Colburn; Colonel D., owned by Mr. O. L. Godfrey, and Hattie S., owned by Perry Johnson, in the trotting race for the 2:40 class; Jasper, owned by Judge E. A. Colburn, in the seven furlong trotting race for maidens; McLeod, Jr., Colonel D. and Hattie S. in the 2:50 class trotting race, and Jasper in the trotting race, 2:26 class.

On Sunday evening Messrs. James H. Gardner and F. N. Wright were rather badly injured by falling from an electric car while returning to this city from Manitou. They were seated in the rear end of trailer No. 15 when a wire for the electric lights on the car hanging down behind them caught fire and presented rather a dangerous appearance. Mr. Gardner and Mr. Wright in their haste to get out of the reach of the danger fell in the road, the former receiving several painful bruises on the hand, arm and face, the latter being injured internally. The accident occurred between Fifth and Sixth streets and was owing to the carelessness of the employees running the car who allowed the wire to hang out of place. Mr. Wright is in bed with Dr. Anderson attending him.

William Gibson, a negro who last spring was an employe at Collins' livery stable on Willamette avenue, was before Justice Farrar's court yesterday charged with the theft of a coat and vest, valued at $15. The theft was committed last May, Henry Hurley, also a negro employed at Collins' stable being the losing party. Since that time Gibson, until last Sunday, has been out of town. Returning to his former home he was promptly arrested and lodged in the city jail. In court he strongly insisted that he was innocent, and gave his hearers to understand that the reason Hurley caused his arrest was owing to the fact (which when expressed gave Mr. Hurley a [illegible]) that [illegible] Gibson, had refused Hurley's kind invitation [illegible] with him from a neighboring yard. In spite of this Gibson was found guilty and given thirty days in the county jail.

COUNTY PRIMARIES.

Most of the Delegates Will Go Un-pledged to the Convention.

The precinct primaries held through the county on Saturday were all harmonious and a majority of the delegates were sent uninstructed.

In Manitou the delegation goes pledged to Frank Bowers for sheriff. They are H. H. Grafton, E. E. Nichols, C. H. Frowine, W. H. Boynton, A. Cree, and C. M. Elerick. H. S. Francisco and E. P. Barker were nominated to fill the two vacancies for justice of the peace, and C. M. Elerick was nominated for constable.

At Eastonville C. Peabody and S. M. Hudson were elected delegates, and A. B. Whitmore was nominated for justice of the peace and John Dawson for constable.

At Woodland Park J. H. Baldwin, F. H. Woomer and Frank Scott were elected delegates to the county convention. M. M. Baldwin and John Long were nominated for the vacant offices of justice of the peace and J. W. Hennessy for constable.

The Palmer Lake delegates were instructed for Bowers, Cochran and Berrey. They are E. C. Gard and J. J. Munger. The Monument delegates are unpledged and are David Portis and J. R. Gwillim. F. A. Hart and Burt Potter come from Peyton; E. P. Moon from Edgerton; C. T. Wilson, I. E. Hutchinson and Thos. Donnell from Fountain; J. Templeton and D. Spielman come from Templeton; H. Pring and W. Knowlton from Divide; J. C. Denny and [illegible] Childs from Green Mountain Falls; Wm Nesting and J. Baker from McFerran; J. Patton and C. H. Wright from Fountain and James Conlogue from Sunview.

Dr. Horn's Accident.

There are certain forms of virus in the diseased human body that are as deadly as the fatal injection of the cobra, and this danger a physician in active practice has often to meet. Dr. T. G. Horn, of this city, is just recovering from an experience of its powers that nearly cost him his right arm, if not his life. On Friday morning he performed a certain operation, and in doing so, he scratched his finger very slightly. He thought nothing about it and went on about his practice. That evening he addressed a large assemblage of the P. O. S. of A. and never seemed better in his life. The next day the members of that audience learned that he was wrestling with death.

About midnight his finger began to swell and inflame and the whole arm quickly became discolored and swollen. Dr. Mellon, the chief division surgeon of the Union Pacific, was summoned and on Saturday he pronounced the case a desperate one. It seemed as if at least the arm would have to be amputated, and perhaps even that operation would leave too much of the poison in the system.

The doctor's health has begun to conquer and the swelling is beginning slowly to go down. Last night he was considerably better, but it will take a great deal of careful nursing before he can begin practice again.

Thomas W. Keene.

A standard Shakespearean play, by one of America's best celebrated actors was the attraction at the handsome new opera house last night. Naturally enough the house was well filled, every seat being occupied, while quite a number remained standing in the lobby. Those who went expecting a treat, as all probably did, were not disappointed. Mr. Keene has merited the reputation he has gained, and there is yet no sign of declining power. In dress, word, look, gesture, he was Richard III. and a more perfect picture of the hating and hateful king could not well be placed upon the stage. Of the support it is difficult to speak justly. On a provincial stage it is folly to expect the attention to details and to minor parts which are given in metropolitan theaters, yet the Shakespearean tragedy especially, with a master in the principal role, is when one most expects and wishes to see a perfect harmony. In a play of this sort an unbalanced taper burning on the floor instead of on the table, a sword struck from a conqueror's hand, an illy spoken phrase, or an awkward gesture, assume an importance beyond their real worth. It is evidence of the high character of last night's representation that no more serious criticism can be made. Mr. Frank Hennig, as King Henry VI. and afterwards as the Earl of Richmond, did good work, rather better in the earlier than in the latter part, while Walter Matthews, as the Duke of Buckingham, was also good, especially in the scene where the mayor and citizens interview the king. The ladies' roles in the play are not sufficiently prominent for anyone to show to advantage. Miss Alberta Gallatin had the difficult and unnatural role of Lady Anne, and played as well as could be expected a character which is inconceivable to a nineteenth century audience. It must be all right, because it is in Shakespeare, but it is hard to believe that there ever was a woman who was neither a fiend nor violently insane who stood by the side of a loved husband's bier to listen to the amorous excuses of a humpbacked murderer. As Queen Elizabeth and the Duchess of York, Miss Henrietta Vadors and Mrs. S. A. Baker had their best opportunity in the scene where they stopped Richard on his way to battle, and they made the most of it, receiving hearty applause. Miss Hannah Bailey made a most winsome and pleasing Prince of Wales.

Potato Day.

To-day is Potato Day, the day on which the inhabitants of that portion of El Paso county which lies on the Divide, have devoted to showing the world that they can grow as good potatoes, and big potatoes, and as many potatoes as the inhabitants of anywhere else. Monument will be the place where this demonstration will be made, and potatoes will be baked, oxen and sheep and chickens barbecued, and the assembled public served free. All the agricultural products of the Divide will be displayed and there will be horse races, athletic sports and a ball game in the way of amusement. It will be a celebration worth attending, and as all the railroads will carry people for half fare, Colorado Springs should send a large delegation.
